Death of General William W. Belknap.

HE WAS FOUND DEAD IN BED

Alone at Night, Unattended by Any One, General Belknap, Secretary of War, Passed Over the Dark River of Death. A Brief History of His Life.

Washington, Oct. 14.—Gen. W. W. Belknap, secretary of war during President Grant's second term, was found dead in his bed at a quarter of twelve Monday morning. It is believed that death occurred between 10 o'clock Sunday night and 1 o'clock Monday morning. From John W. Cameron, Gen. Belknap's business associate, it is learned that for some time it has been the general's habit to meet a few friends at the home of Dr. Hill, who lives less than a square away from a coal game of cards.

Last Saturday night he was with them as usual and remained until nearly midnight, when he returned to his apartment in the Evans building, at the New York avenue, and presumably retired. He was never again seen alive. About 5:30 o'clock Monday morning Mr. Cameron arrived at the building and, taking the mail for him, found the general from the box of the first floor, proceeded to the second floor, where their offices and the general's apartments are located.

He had heard of the general mail from his own, with he began reading, when the servant girl who keeps the rooms in order, rapped at the door and inquired if Gen. Belknap was out of the city, saying that she had several times since Sunday morning tried the door, but found them locked. Mr. Cameron, started at what the girl had said, immediately tried the doors himself, but they were locked.

The general was summoned, and, bringing a key, unlocked the door leading from the public hall to the general's sitting room. He could see the general's hat on the table and his coat and vest upon a chair standing near the step leading into his bed room. The bed was then seen and the general lying partly under a coverlet. His left arm was bent rigidly downward, his head, and his left hand was tightly clenched, as though death had come while he was in a convulsion.

The bed of the general was somewhat disarranged as if there had been a slight struggle for breath. A physician was summoned and after making a brief examination expressed the opinion that death had resulted from a stroke of apoplexy. The coroner soon afterward arrived and took the body in charge. An autopsy will be held later.

Mrs. Belknap, who has been in Newport and other eastern seaside resorts during the summer months, but in New York during the last few weeks, was summoned by telegraph, and also the general's son, Hiram, from his home in Chicago, where he is employed in the office of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

For some years past Gen. Belknap has been in ill health, and has suffered from gout and rheumatism. He had no severe ailment in the last few weeks, and was in good health. He was elected to the Senate as a Democrat in 1877. At the beginning of the civil war he joined the volunteer army as major of the 1st Iowa regiment. He was elected to the Senate in 1877. He was elected to the Senate in 1877. He was elected to the Senate in 1877.

William Worth Belknap was born in Newbury, N. Y., Sept. 22, 1829. He studied law in Newbury, N. Y., and practiced at Newbury, Iowa, where he settled in 1851 and where he was elected to the Legislature as a Democrat in 1857. At the beginning of the civil war he joined the volunteer army as major of the 1st Iowa regiment. He was elected to the Senate in 1877.

After the war he was collector of internal revenue in Iowa from 1865 until Oct. 18, 1869, when he was appointed secretary of war. The office he retained during Gen. Grant's civil administration, until March 1, 1876, when, in consequence of charges of official corruption he was impeached and tried and acquitted for receiving bribes. He was appointed postmaster general and was re-elected to the office in 1877. He was re-elected to the office in 1877.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.

A Man Roasted to Death in a Dry House at Cleveland, O.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 14.—Patrick Gorman, foreman of the Ohio and Steel company, was the victim of a most horrible accident yesterday. About 3 o'clock he went into the dry department, which is a large room built of iron for the purpose of heating rollers to the proper temperature for rolling. He was passing over them, and laid down for a nap. The room at this time was at a comfortable temperature.

Soon afterward some one turned on the gas without knowing he was in the room, and when the doors were opened at 6 o'clock Gorman was found lying face down. It is supposed that he was partially overcome by the gas while asleep, and was unable to make his escape, and the intense heat killed him. He leaves a widow and four children.

THE SONS OF VETERANS INCIDENT.

Colonel Kline Will Suspend the Officers Who Paid Respect to the President.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 14.—H. J. Kline, colonel of the Missouri division of the Sons of Veterans, Friday telegraphed the camps in St. Louis that under no conditions should they turn out as an organization to receive President Harrison upon his arrival in that city. His commands were disobeyed, and he now announces that the officers refusing to recognize his orders will at once be suspended.

Col. Kline is a Republican, but he says that the organization of which he is colonel is non-political, and if such things are allowed chaos in the order will be the result. On the other hand, the St. Louis Sons of Veterans claim that their acts were not political, and that they turned out simply as one of the great organizations of the country to pay their respects to its chief executive. They will appeal to the commander-in-chief.

SOUTH CAROLINA POLITICS.

October 22 Will Be a Great Day in the Palmetto State.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 14.—The first bombshell of the new campaign in the state was exploded when Judge A. C. Haskell, the independent candidate for governor was burned in effigy. Leading citizens were in attendance and speeches were made denouncing the independent movement.

The address of the state executive committee given out reading the Haskellites out of the Democratic party has intensified the bitterness all round. Capt. Tillman was hinted at throughout the address, and the independent candidate is a game at which two can play.

As the committee say in their address—"A grave crisis in the history of the state confronts us while supremacy in South Carolina is endangered."

Mass meetings have been ordered throughout the state for the 27th inst.

Has Not Boycotted Roach's Shipyard.

St. Louis, Oct. 14.—Cablegrams have been received from London to the effect that a rumor was afloat there that Secretary of the Navy Tracy had boycotted Roach's shipyard on account of the fact that the yard had been bought by an English syndicate. Secretary Tracy was seen and in reply to an inquiry as to the truthfulness of the London rumor, said: "I did not know that Roach's shipyard had been sold to an English syndicate until shown this cablegram, and you can say the whole story of my boycotting the Roach yard is a humbug."

A Peculiar Defense.

COLUMBUS, Kan., Oct. 14.—A peculiar case, with a peculiar defense, came before the court in this city Saturday. James Wilson was arrested for breaking into a saloon and stealing a quantity of liquors. The act was not denied, but the defense set up the plea, that as the keeping of liquors was contrary to law, the act of taking the goods was no crime. The jury returned a verdict in favor of the defendant, and he was released. He was then re-arrested on the charge of stealing the bottles.

Denial from Corporal Tanner.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Ex-Commissioner of Pensions, Tanner emphatically denies that he ever wrote a letter to Congressman Cooper or anyone else, stating that the president had made up his mind to let out the present commission. Gen. Ransom, Mr. Tanner said, in his opinion, it would be unsound for the president to take any action in Commissioner Ransom's case before the investigation of the affairs of the pension office have been concluded.

HOMEWARD BOUND.

The President En Route to Washington.

BRIEF STOPS ALONG THE ROUTE.

The President Addresses the Assembled Crowds at a Number of Stations—Nothing Occurs to Mar the Pleasure of the Trip.

Pittsburg, Oct. 14.—The president and party left Indianapolis at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. With a long series of short stops ahead the president did not care to take the chance of delay. A large crowd was in waiting at Anderson. Mayor Terhune introduced the president, who briefly addressed the crowd. At the conclusion of the president's speech the mayor introduced Secretary Tracy, and a moment later the train started.

The train arrived at Union City at 9 a. m. Chairs had been placed on the steps of the hotel near the station, and the president and Secretary Tracy were led to them between lines of school children who crowded forward before them. The president was introduced by state senator Schockley, and made a brief speech.

At Versailles the president shook hands with a number of people.

At Sidney where the president arrived at 10 a. m., a committee from Bellefontaine, headed by Judge Lawrence, met the president's party. The president made no speech at Sidney. He shook hands with a good many people from the back platform of the car. A short stop was made at Degraff at 10:30, and the principal of the schools introduced the president to the children. After a brief speech the children crowded about the car to shake the president's hand. The president said: "I wish I could shake hands with each of these children."

The president arrived at Bellefontaine at 10:45. He was introduced to the crowd there by the mayor of the city. President Harrison bowed from the rear platform as the crowd cheered loudly. After a brief speech the president introduced Secretary Tracy, who bowed his acknowledgments to the crowd as the train moved on.

After leaving Bellefontaine the president made no speeches for several stations. At Latrobe he shook hands with a great many people. At Agosta he appeared for a few minutes on the platform. At Galien there was another hand-shaking. The president tried to make a speech, but the noise was too great and he had to abandon the attempt. At Crestline the president received a telegram from Secretary Wilson saying that Justice Miller was sinking rapidly, and that his death was expected at any minute.

There was a large crowd at Crestline and a band of music. At this point the Haslemere was switched to the tracks of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago railroad. As the car was backed down to the station the mayor of Crestline mounted the platform of the president's car. After saluting him he turned and introduced him to the assemblage.

The president's train left Crestline at 1:15, seven minutes behind the schedule time. Luncheon was served on the Haslemere just as the train left Crestline. At Mansfield a crowd of 1,000 people met the train. Senator Sherman introduced the president, who made a brief address which was received with cheers. The train left Mansfield at 1:45.

At Mansfield the president received from the agent of the United Press through its special correspondent on the train, the bulletin of the death of Secretary Belknap, and a bulletin also of the condition of Justice Miller, in both of which he was much interested.

At Wooster the president left the train and went to a small platform a few yards from the station under the escort of the local committee at the head of which was Dr. Stoddard, once his instructor in chemistry at the Miami university of Oxford, O. He addressed the crowd with quite a lengthy speech.

The president was then escorted back to the train. Mansfield was the next station where a reception had been arranged. Before reaching the town the president was saluted with a ringing cheer from a group of factory operatives gathered on the bank at the side of the main track. At this point a large crowd was assembled and Mayor Reed introduced the president to the audience, after welcoming him on the part of the Grand Army of the Republic, the civil children and the citizens.

At the town of Canton, where the train arrived about 4 o'clock, there was an enormous crowd in waiting. It filled the street, yard and platform and overflowed on the tops of the railroad cars. At Canton was the next station. The crowd was very large and dense. The president was introduced by Hon. David Ford.

When the president had concluded his remarks he began to shake hands with the people near the car and the street was kept within reaching distance of the president was fearful. It is surprising that there were no serious injuries from the crowd.

At Toledo the last station on the program for the day the crowd demonstrated its respect for the president by a speech, but the president was not allowed to speak. His voice was drowned by the roar of the crowd and the president was unable to speak.

The president was taken all of his time in the last speech making. On the way to Toledo he made seven speeches, transcribing all previous ones. He spoke at Alliance yesterday, at Toledo, and at Indianapolis at 6:15 o'clock yesterday morning.

At Toledo was the president's last stop on the evening. The train arrived at Pittsburg with- out noteworthy incident. The train arrived in the Pittsburg station at 8:35 o'clock. It was broken there and the Haslemere was made part of the fast express of the Pennsylvania railroad.

JUST OF MILLER ROAD.

Death Causes a Vacancy on the Supreme Court Bench.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Associate Justice Miller, of the United States supreme court, who was stricken with paralysis several days ago, and whose death was looked for hourly since his prostration by the fatal stroke, died last night a few minutes before 11 o'clock.

Samuel Freeman Miller, associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, who died at his residence in this city last night, was born in Richmond, Ky., April 5, 1816. He graduated at the medical department of the Transylvania university in Kentucky in 1838, and practiced medicine for a few years; but afterwards became a lawyer. In 1850, Judge Miller moved to Iowa, where he became a prominent leader among Republicans in that state. He, however, declined nomination to numerous state offices, devoting his time and efforts to his profession, in which he took high rank.

In 1869 President Lincoln appointed him associate justice of the supreme court of the United States. He was at the time of his death the oldest justice in continuous service on the supreme court bench—Judge Field, who was appointed by President Lincoln in 1862, coming next, and Judges Bradley (appointed in 1870), Harlan, Gray, Blatchford, Fuller and Brewer following next in order of seniority of service.

Bank Failure in South Dakota.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 14.—A special from Aberdeen, S. Dak., to The Tribune says: The well known and well established banking house of F. H. Hagerty & Company, closed its doors at 2:30 yesterday afternoon, having assigned to Ira Barnas, and J. O. A. Braden for the benefit of creditors. As near as can be learned the liabilities aggregate $340,000. The assets will run from $30,000 to $250,000, consisting of bills receivable, bank and other stock and real estate. The failure was not unexpected, but up to 2 o'clock in the afternoon the bank believed they could tide over, and with careful management avoid the crash. But several heavy drafts came in which could not be met. The immediate cause of the failure is general hard times and depression of business caused by two crop failures in succession. The other bank will not be affected by the failure and are in good shape.

A CELEBRATED CASE DECIDED.

An Injunction Suit That is of Interest to Every Mason in the State—Political Causes Before the Extra Session of the Legislature—Other Ohio State Dispatches.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 14.—Judge Evans has decided the celebrated injunction suit of interest to Masons all over the state. It was a fight between the northern jurisdiction and the Cerneau Scottish Rites, and the former got the best of it. Two years ago charges were preferred against twenty-five members of Goodale lodge, Free and Accepted Masons of Columbus, the charges consisting in allegations to the effect that the accused had been guilty of un-masonic conduct by identifying themselves with the Cerneau Scottish Rites. Expulsion was stopped by an injunction. Judge Evans held that the members have property interests in the lodge only so long as they remain members. The question of validity of the Cerneau branch was undecided for want of jurisdiction.

The premises occupied a frontage of thirty feet on Middle street, the same on Chatham, and thence extended fifty feet to Newby street, where was the employees' entrance. The fire started in the workshop on the upper floor at 1 o'clock. At the time there were thirty persons in the building.

Within two minutes from the time the fire was discovered the building was wrapped in flames, which spread rapidly that the employees found every avenue of escape except the windows shut off. Through these a number of them jumped to the street. Five of the women employed by the firm were killed in trying to effect an escape in this manner.

Several of the persons confined in the upper rooms of the burning building died of suffocation together and, in a number of cases, successfully descended to the street. ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION.

Jesse Rhoads, of Scott Town, Narrowly Escapes Being Murdered.

Jesse Rhoads, a farmer, residing two miles this side of Scott Town, in Salt Rock township, apparently has a dangerous enemy. Sunday evening Mr. Rhoads was at home enjoying the comforts of his fireside, when an attempt was made upon his life. At about 7 o'clock a man was seen approaching the Rhoads residence with a lighted lantern, but when reaching the house the light was extinguished. This was noticed by Mr. Rhoads' family and a young son went outside to see what had become of the man. The boy was startled when he opened the door to see a man crossing the porch, pointing a revolver at him. He jumped back into the house to report what he had seen, and almost at the same moment a shot was fired at his father through a window pane. Mr. Rhoads was sitting in a rocking chair, with his head thrown back. The would-be murderer's bullet caught Mr. Rhoads at the top of the forehead, but glanced off, cutting through the hair. His wife was close and the bullet apparently missed her only about a foot, and she received broken glass in her face.

After the shot Mr. Rhoads grabbed his gun and went after his man, but could see nothing of him in the darkness.

A Popular Official.

A. L. Robbins is making an excellent record as superintendent of the Toledo division of the Columbus, Hooking Valley and Toledo. This division has always been considered difficult to manage, the trade being heavy and the terminal facilities at its northern end limited by reason of having to use the Pennsylvania company's tracks and yard. Mr. Robbins was prominently featured when he was one of the first to be sworn in as a member of the Toledo division.

A large number of old and young employees were discharged by Mr. Robbins' professional make-over. As a consequence the movement of trains was interfered with, and in one month 500 was paid to employees for lost time. The day before yesterday Mr. Robbins has reinstated a majority of the old employees, reporting evidence of their loyalty and a willingness to be re-employed. He has also reinstated a majority of the old employees, reporting evidence of their loyalty and a willingness to be re-employed.
